

Bring Your Fantasy Story to Life

Writing with Sharon Watson

Directions

1. Cut apart the boxes for Fantasy Characters, Fantasy Settings, and Fantasy Situations.
2. Choose one box from each category.
3. Use the character, setting, and situation to catapult you into a story.
4. Adapt any character, setting, or situation to fit your needs.
5. Write.
6. Have fun!

Fantasy Characters

Fantasy Character Dragon	Fantasy Character Hero/heroine on a quest, a mentor, and traveling companions
Fantasy Character Fairies/Elves	Fantasy Character Orphan
Fantasy Character Shapeshifter—a character that can change forms	Fantasy Character Creatures or humans with magical powers
Fantasy Character Royalty or those who live in palaces	Fantasy Character Fantastical animals or creatures such as harpies, dryads, hobbits, genies, or unicorns
Fantasy Character Talking animals	Fantasy Character Creatures that are combinations of others, like the satyr (man and horse) or a mermaid (woman and fish)

Fantasy Settings

Fantasy Setting Medieval time period	Fantasy Setting A palace
Fantasy Setting An exotic port or land	Fantasy Setting Pre-Roman Ireland or England
Fantasy Setting An island or land that is not on the map	Fantasy Setting On the cusp of the Industrial Age
Fantasy Setting A magic cave	Fantasy Setting A dark or mystical woods
Fantasy Setting A Middle-earth kind of setting, related to Earth but magical	Fantasy Setting A world under the sea

Fantasy Situations

Fantasy Situation Someone is sent or chooses to go on a quest or task.	Fantasy Situation Someone must break a curse.
Fantasy Situation Someone goes on a journey to find something or someone.	Fantasy Situation Someone must deliver a message, package, or character safely.
Fantasy Situation Someone must right a wrong.	Fantasy Situation An ordinary person falls into or discovers a fantastical world.
Fantasy Situation Someone must escape a bad situation.	Fantasy Situation Someone finds a treasure.
Fantasy Situation The protagonist desires something that will eventually hurt him or her.	Fantasy Situation Someone is given a power he or she does not want or cannot control.

Give your teens the skills they need to write meaningful stories and to get published:

- | | |
|--------------------------------|---------------------------------------|
| Create empathetic protagonists | Hook their readers |
| Select a point of view | Write engaging dialog |
| Ramp up the conflict | Describe settings and characters |
| Build scenes | Critique themselves and other writers |
| Submit a manuscript | And much, much more! |

Can be self-taught with guidance or used in groups and co-ops

- A two-semester course for English credit
- No prerequisites needed
- 13 fact-filled chapters, approximately 300 pages
- 85 practical lessons
- One of only a few fiction texts uniquely designed for high school teens
- Written to the student in a conversational tone
- Gives insight into stories for literature courses
- Hundreds of age-appropriate fiction examples from classics to recent novels
- Optional manuscript track for teens who have already written a story